HOLLANDERS BUILD
REMARKABLE SHIP

Replica of Famous Admiral
Michel de Ruyter's Renowned Vessel.

BOLD SAILOR'S BIRTHDAY

Three Hundredth Anniversary March
24, to Witness Start of Boat's
World Tour.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—To celebrate the 300th anniversary of the birth of the famous Dutch admiral, Michel de Ruyter, which occurs on March 24, 1907, a ship is being built at Antwerp, which in every detail, inside and out, is a true copy of de Ruyter's renowned flagship, The Seven Provinces.

Between the upper decks will be placed a collection of Dutch works of art, while concert halls and cafes are to be found below.

On March 24 next year the ship, manned by a crew dressed in the costumes of the seventeenth century, will weigh anchor and start on a trip around the world, touching at all chief ports.

One of the first places to be visited will be New Amsterdam, better known now as New York.

Tokyo World's Fair in 1912.

It is hardly to be wondered at that the Japanese, who want to show the world that they are a modern people in every respect, could not be long without a world's fair.

The greatest exposition the world has ever seen is to be opened at Tokyo in 1912.

The "Yankees of the East" have already planned buildings which are to put those of Chicago and St. Louis in the shade, and count on 15,000,000 visitors from Europe and America.

Tolstoy on the Revolution.

To a French journalist friend who visited him at Yasujia Poljana, the other day, Count Leo Tolstoy spoke of the Russian revolution in the following words:

"I have my own ideas of this revolution. I know very well that it has become the fashion to consider me an old chatterbox. But what can I do? I cannot say that I am wrong, when I know that I am right."

"The whole situation is very simple. What is the cause of the disease from which Russia is suffering and from which some, but not I, think she will die? It is because there is real power, not authority, here any longer."

"There are two kinds of authority—one which is founded on violence, and which is immoral and bad, and another is based on the will of the free citizens."

"Here in Russia we have at the present time neither one nor the other, and I for one am convinced that a nation cannot exist without recognizing some authority."

"Two measures are necessary to the happiness of Russia—all land must be given to the peasants who work it, and we must have the single tax as advocated by Henry George, one of the greatest men that ever lived."

"Then the whole labor question will be solved."

Kaiser Favors Subways.

The Kaiser, in strict incognito, has been making personal observation of Berlin's traffic problem.

Alighting from his carriage in the Potsdamer Platz, the busiest center in Berlin, he stood for some time without being recognized, watching the tangle of traffic.

Afterward the Emperor gave his impressions of the traffic problem to some of his entourage. "Subways," he said, "are the only solution of the difficulty."

Accordingly the Kaiser is giving encouragement to the subway enterprise in Berlin, which compares in this respect unfavorably with New York, Paris and London.

The Kaiser was formerly very fond of going about the city disguised, like Haroun al Raschid, as an ordinary citizen. In his younger days he used to make tours of observation in street cars and omnibuses, making notes about his fellow passengers.

Berlin Yellow Journals.

American yellow journalism has been outdone in Berlin, where you may now at all times hear the cry: "Extree-Extree—All about the terrible massacres in Russia!"

The yellow papers are very different from their American brethren. They have no circulation and no advertisements, but are simply gotten up to sell for a nickel to the thousands of Russian refugees now in this city.

They have the large scareheads familiar to Americans, but no real Berliner buys them, and if the police can get hold of their editors they go to jail without ceremony.

RIVER SEINE ON FIRE
WHEN PETROLEUM SPREADS

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Parisians were startled the other day on seeing the river Seine on fire. The flames were caused by a large case of petroleum, which was being unloaded on a quay, slipping overboard and striking against a large, bursting and spilling the oil on the water. Just then an angler fishing off a bridge threw a lighted match down and it ignited the oil.

For fifty yards the Seine presented the appearance of a stream of burning lava. Several barges were damaged, and numerous small boats destroyed, while traffic was interrupted for several hours.

NO PLAY WORTH A PRIZE.

MILAN, Oct. 20.—The competition for the 10,000-franc prize to be awarded the author of the best new play, and which had been organized by Eleonora Duse, has been closed without the money having been awarded. The jury who read the numerous works has declared that not one of them is worth a cent.

Pastor in Full Armor
Preaches His Sermon
To Astonished Flock

The Rev. G. E. Thorn, of London, made a sensation the other day by addressing his congregation while wearing a genuine suit of armor of the time when knighthood was in flower. He admitted to the photographer who took the snapshot that armor is decidedly uncomfortable, and he is not likely to repeat the experiment in spite of the attraction it caused.

MILLIONS OF GOLD
STOLEN FROM MINES

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 20.—Mine officials at the Kalgoolie gold fields are accused of extensive thefts of gold by a royal commission which has been inquiring into certain scandals.

Gold worth $1,500,000 to $3,000,000 has been stolen annually for some years, the thefts being systematically covered by false declarations at the banks as to the origin of the gold.

OFFICE CLERKS LIVE
THE ALLOTTED SPAN

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Office work is the healthiest employment, according to Dr. A. T. Schofield, who gives lectures to business men in the financial section of the city. He said that clerks are the only men who live as long as they ought to, and that as a boy they represent exactly the average life.

Clergymen live from twenty to thirty years longer than they should, and doctors die before their time.

RUSSIAN ELOPERS
FOUND IN FRANCE

General Outchakoff's Wife
Declares Love for Dashing
Lieutenant.

READY TO DIE TOGETHER

Pursuit of Wronged Husband, Who Threatened Vengeance, Was in Vain.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Discovered in a villa in the south of France the world-famous elopers, Gabriel Essipoff and the wife of General Outchakoff, the distinguished Russian soldier, standing side by side, told of their great affection for each other, and declared that love alone led them to flee from St. Petersburg.

The dashing lieutenant declared that he was ready to die for the wife of his superior officer and said that love was stronger than marriage ties.

Reminded of the wrathful and wronged husband that chased him from St. Petersburg to New York and across the ocean again to Paris, the lieutenant said:

"If I die, it will be with a smoking revolver in my hand. Why should I die? I only loved too well. That is all."

Nearly five weeks ago while the general was in attendance on the Czar at his hiding place in the great palace at Peterhof, word came to him that his handsome young wife had eloped with his subordinate. Obtaining leave of absence the general pursued his recreation. On leaving the Russian capital, he said:

"I will kill him. For then there will be no more danger for my wife. She shall come back to St. Petersburg with me. But he must die."

He traced the fleeing couple to Genoa and found the hotel at which they had stopped. He was told that they had left but three hours before.

MAY BECOME PEERESS
IN HER OWN RIGHT

Earldom of Ancestor Can Descend to Woman if Male Line Becomes Extinct.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The infant daughter of Lord and Lady Willoughby de Eresby, occupies a unique position in the nobility, as should no brother be born to her she will eventually in the ordinary course of events be one day a peeress in her own right. Lord Willoughby is the son and heir of the Earl of Ancaster and his wife was Miss Eloise Breeze, a New York heiress. Their marriage was one of the great social events of last December.

In the British peerage it is usual to have the title descend through the male line, but in the barony of Willoughby de Eresby, which was created 600 years ago, the descent is in both the female and male lines.

The Earldom of Ancaster, to which the husband of Miss Breeze will one day, if he lives, succeed, is of recent creation, dating only from 1822.

KAISER HUNTS DEER
IN AN AUTOMOBILE

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—With the aid of a fast automobile, the Kaiser has been doing great execution among the deer in Rominten forest.

In the course of a day's deer stalking he shot three fine stags, in widely separated parts of the forest. The second and third stags which he brought down were magnificent animals, weighing 300 and 225 pounds. These the Kaiser bagged within two hours, although they were found at opposite ends of the forest. His auto took him from point to point at a great speed, enabling him to reach the haunts of his quarry in record time.

The Kaiser would have bagged a fourth fine stag, but could not get a good aim owing to the falling light.

IRISH MAID POSES
AS QUEEN PAINTS

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Queen Alexandra, who is no mean artist, has been drawing in colored crayons a "Saint Cecilia," using as a model one of the kitchen maids at Balmoral.

Driving through the grounds, she met a beautiful girl, with a lovely complexion and a serene expression, whom she decided upon as the very model she was looking for. Her majesty is engaged on a series of crayon drawings for the decoration of her new villa in Denmark, and wanted to do a picture of Saint Cecilia for the music room.

The kitchen maid, a young Irish girl just over from the Emerald Isle, was taken from her domestic work and posed every morning for the royal artist.

MRS. ARTHUR PAGET
IS NOW LADY PAGET

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The popular American society leader, long known as Mrs. Arthur Paget, is now Lady Paget, her husband, Major Gen. Arthur Paget, having been created a Knight Commander of the Victorian Order. He has had a brilliant military career, and many succeed Gen. Sir John French in the important command at Aldershot.

Lady Paget, who had a trying elevator accident at her Belgrave Square house two years ago, is still only convalescent, but continues to go about on crutches.

She makes the sixth Lady Paget and the second American one, the first being Sir John Raskere Paget's wife, who was a daughter of George Moke, of New York.
